Robert Welch

In exceptional hospitality, the smallest detail can make the greatest impression.

Since 1955, meticulous attention to detail has enabled Robert Welch Designs to set a standard for understated luxury, with creations gracing the tables of the world's most distinguished hotels, restaurants, airlines, cruise ships, and private residences.

Robert Welch believed that design should not simply serve a purpose but enhance every experience – quietly supporting the ritual of dining, the art of hosting, and the memory of a moment well spent.

Today, this vision endures with each product reflecting timeless elegance, exacting craftsmanship and the very essence of hospitality – a warm welcome, an elevated experience, and excellence that is both seen and felt.

Chronology

Our story

Crafted in stainless steel • Designed to last a lifetime

Since 1955 our family-owned company has been at the forefront of creating products that combine elegance with functionality.

Founder Robert Welch set up his workshop in the Cotswold market town of Chipping Campden. Inspired by his visits to Scandinavia, he chose to focus on stainless steel, a material he foresaw as the future of design. His most significant designs are housed in collections around the world from the V&A museum in London to the Museum of Modern Art (MoMA) in New York. Our team of designers still work from the 18th-century silk mill where Robert Welch started over 70 years ago.

Robert's son Rupert and daughter Alice continue to create iconic and award-winning designs shaped by their father's vision.
